1. Spark up

The Little Prince is the most translated book in the French language. With a timeless charm it tells the story of a little boy who leaves the safety of his own tiny planet to travel the universe, learning the vagaries of adult behaviour through a series of extraordinary encounters. His personal odyssey culminates in a voyage to Earth and further adventures.

Hans Christian Anderson's original fairy tale about a strange, scruffy 'duckling' who is rejected by the birds and animals around him because he is different, but grows up to discover that he is really a beautiful swan, has been told and retold countless times – and through all kinds of creative interpretations – across the years.

AN EXPLANATION OF THE KEY ELEMENTS OF LITERATURE

Life is not a series of gig lamps symmetrically arranged; life is a luminous halo, a semitransparent envelope surrounding us from the beginning of consciousness to the end. — Virginia Wolf

This quote most certainly echoes the hidden beauty of literature. Literature finds its recognition in stories, novels, and drama. The theme is of prime importance. An author depicts the ups and downs of the protagonist with the help of characterization. The story progresses through various plots. There are prologues and epilogues and a myriad other entities. The paragraphs below will tell you more about the elements of literature.

Plot

A plot is the sequential arrangement of incidents, ideas, or events. In literature, the plot encompasses all the incidents and provides aesthetic pleasure. The story of the novel progresses through various plots and conflicts. Plots of dramas are divided into "Acts" and "Scenes". Drama has five essential parts.

These are:

- Introduction of the story where the characters and setting are introduced
- Rising action
- Climax
- Falling action
- Resolution

Playwrights use dialog to develop their plots. They reveal information about their characters such as their background and personality.

Character

Character plays a pivotal role in a drama, novel, short story, and all kinds of narratives. In drama, the character reflects the personality of the protagonist and other related characters. In Marlowe's drama "The Tragical History of Dr. Faustus", Faustus is the main character of the play.

Setting

It refers to geographical location of the story, time period, daily lifestyle of the characters, and climate of the story. In a novel, the setting plays an important role. Settings of literary forms have been changing according to theme of the literary piece; for example, Shakespeare's tragedies and comedies have the setting of palaces and castles, whereas modern and post-modern dramas have setting of houses of the common public.

Theme

Theme is a prime element of literature, which contains the central idea of all literary forms. It reflects innocence, experience, life, death, reality, fate, madness, sanity, love, society, individual, etc.

Point of view

Point of view is another element of the narrative, through which a writer tells the story. Authors use the first-person or the third-person point of view. The former indicates that the main character is telling the story, whereas the latter directs that the narrator is telling the story.

Conflict

Be it a short story, drama or novel, conflict is the essential element of all these literary forms. A plot becomes interesting and intriguing when it has its share of inbuilt conflict and twists. Conflict can be internal conflict or external. It can take place between two men, between the character and his psychology, between the character and circumstances, or between character and society.

Literary devices

Like the hammer and nail, literary devices are the true tools of the writer. A partial list of literary devices include simile, metaphor, personification, symbolism, alliteration, hyperbole, figurative language, humor, and irony.

Style

Style is like a fingerprint, no two are alike. A function of diction, syntax, and voice, style tends to emerge from how you write rather than from a concerted effort to control it.

Tone

After you have asked a question, "What does theme mean?", it is time to focus on the tone of the story. The latter is made on the basis of the narrative attitudes with the support from the actions and words of the characters. This is the voice of the story with its peculiar style used to add impressive effect and inspire empathy of the readers to the characters.
